

Brief biography of Professor William C. Nelson

In the field of alternative medicine some individuals stand out because of their passion for research and their ability to bring their findings to the world. A researcher may reveal many profound things. As individuals, however, it is rare that any one researcher provides all the keys we need for health. It is more likely we will discover some aspect of the researcher's work that truly works for us rather than everything the researcher offers. For this reason, it is important we each use our natural instinct to decide what we want to accept and what we want to reject no matter how authoritative the researcher may seem. William C. Nelson (Bill Nelson) is one of these rare individuals, independent researchers, who have devoted time and talent to bring us keys to creating health.

Born and raised in Ohio (Warren, 19th June 1951), Bill Nelson was identified as a genius from an early age. As a young man, his interest in quantum physics and electronic engineering led to his work for General Motors and his contribution into the 'Gyro' navigation system on the Apollo space project. He turned his genius to the field of medicine and health after the birth of his first-born son Daniel, retreated into the world of autism as result of an anti-nausea drug his wife took while pregnant. Other reason was the death of one of his grand mothers as the result of chemotherapy. After devouring the information offered by the allopathic medical world and the synthetic drug industry, he turned to the world of alternative medicine. Using natural remedies, he was successful in reversing many of the symptoms of his son's autism.

During his research, he was intrigued by a number of bio-electric devices being used: the 'Vega' machine, the 'Voll', and the 'Mora' unit – as well as biofeedback and cranial electrical stimulation (CES) units. These units either measure the body's electrical response to help diagnose problems in the body or they emit frequencies to treat problems. He also studied the body's subtle energy systems – acupuncture meridians, chakra's energy, applied kinesiology or muscle testing, etc. The body's subtle energy system is an early warning system. Imbalances in the body's subtle energies show up much earlier than disease symptoms. Bill Nelson decided to apply his genius to design an all-inclusive system – a computerized system that would both test and balance the body at the subtle energy level. The 'Quantum Xrroid Consciousness Interface' – QXCI was born.

In developing his system, Bill Nelson has integrated the sciences of mathematics, quantum physics, electronics, naturopathy, homeopathy, chiropractic, energetic medicine and computer programming. He has also incorporated his knowledge of metaphysical subjects to bring a unique synergistic perspective to natural healing. He has studied psychology, homeopathy, naturopathy, science, business, computer science and international law. He has also mastered the difficulties of creating the software to integrate the many healing modalities he has programmed into the QXCI system. His unique knowledge of subjects such as fractal dynamics, subspace theory, a tri-vector system and others, has made this energetic feedback system possible.

The QXCI gathers bio-energetic data from the body via fifty five channels simultaneously. The information is prioritized to help the natural health practitioner zero-in on the body's current specific needs. The program offers information specific to subtle energies – emotional and mental stresses, nutritional needs, food sensitivities, digestive and cleansing needs, etc. In the hands of a trained health practitioner, the imbalances in the subtle energy field are tracked to determine the most probable sources of ill health. In addition the QXCI has the capability to apply approximately 50 different corrective energies to help the body establish energetic balance for health and well-being. The health practitioner is also able to determine the lifestyle changes and remedies that will best help as a next step in a plan for better health.

Rather than to deal with the politics of health in the US and the FDA, Bill Nelson moved to Budapest in 1993. He has lectured in schools in the USA, England and Hungary on homeopathy as a science and healing modality. At present, in addition to lecturing in countries all over the World and regularly updating his computerized stress reduction system, Bill Nelson has set up 'New Vistas of Hungary', a small hand-made homeopathic products company. He has also started his own movie production company 'Change the World', with the purpose of bringing awareness to the general public about the politics of health, the many economic interests hidden within the synthetic drug industry, as well as other aspects of the industry of health.
